Budget 2009

Greenbelt's Planning Department Describes Responsibilities, Aims

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council held its third budget worksession on Wednesday, April 9 to review the Planning and Community Development Department's proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2009. The city services provided by the department include planning, community development, parking enforcement, animal control and coordination of the city's capital projects. The FY09 proposed budget for those services totals $1,149,800, an increase of $87,000 over the 2008 budget of $1,062,700.

Although the department is projected to finish FY08 by exceeding its budget by nearly $7,000, there were marked differences in several accounts between projections and actual outcomes. Salaries and benefits came in much lower because of the delay in filling a Capital Projects coordinator position authorized last year but expenditures increased for the contracting out of permit inspection services, mainly for the related projects to Greenbelt Station and an unexpected contribution of $250,000 from the Greenbelt Station developers compensating the city for the permit and plan review of their early development of infrastructure projects.

The $250,000 payment this year was noted by City Manager Michael McLaughlin in his March 29 FY09 budget presentation as one reason for his decision not to propose a tax rate increase in the city budget. From a personnel perspective, the proposed FY09 budget for the department shows no net increase in staffing. On the other hand, there is a shifting of one-half of a full time equivalent (FTE) to the Animal Control function from Community Development.

Staffing needs for the department, especially in the area of code enforcement for the Springhill Lake apartments, may continue to be a subject of concern as the budget review process progresses.

Those Present

All members of council, McLaughlin, Assistant City Manager David Moran and City Treasurer Jeff Williams were on hand for the budget review. Celia Craze, director of the department; Terri Hruby, assistant director of planning; and Jim Sterling, assistant director for community development, made presentations covering 2008 accomplishments, 2009 goals and objectives and issues currently facing the department.

In addition the staff presented a chart showing the comparable fees charged by other local governments for the periodic inspections of multi-family and single family rental units and for business licenses. The chart showed that Greenbelt was at the lower tier in rates charged by neighboring jurisdictions for the range of housing units and businesses the awards.

The department honored the top live-in, live-out and married officers. Awards were given out based on a points system that awards one point for every ambulance call and a point for every two hours spent on a call.

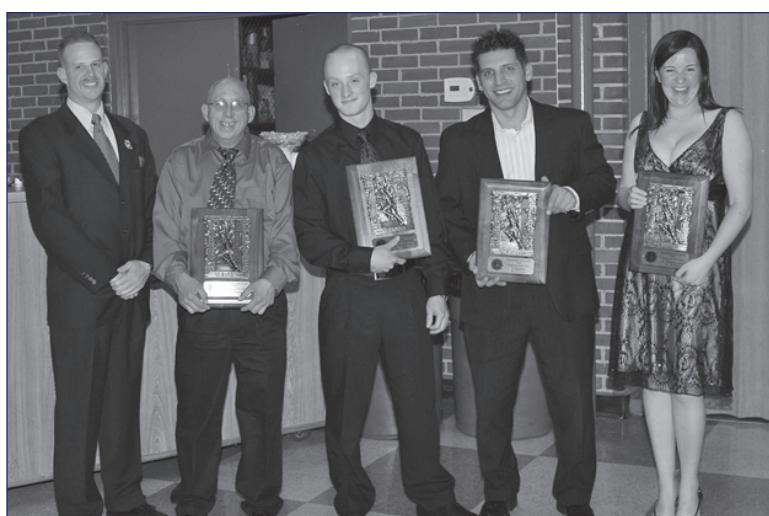

The top five live-in firefighters were Robert Tripe, Eric Martinez, Anthony Sluder, James Silcox and Amy Weinberger. The top six live-out officers were Randy Krob, Chris Ransom, Kelly Lawson, Chris Doyle, Sean Leahy and James Stoddard. The top five married firefighters were Matthew Kulle, John Voigt, Michael Cooney, Luis Arias and Aleksy

Szachnowicz.

The department also gave life membership to Thomas Ray and Szachnowicz for their 15 years of service to the station. Other service awards were given to Margaret Dutton and James Stratchko for 30 years of service, Kulle and William Lewis for 10 years of service and Jake Gigliotti and Kelley Piper for five years.

Ladies Auxiliary members honored included Mary Frances Crisman for 45 years of service, Charlene Backstrom for 10 years of service and Donna Mangum for five years. The auxiliary donated $15,000 to the fire department, to be used on upgrades to the fire department and equipment.

Crisman said that even though the firefighters don't get paid, there are a few benefits given to them by the state. Volunteer firefighters get between $300 and $400 a month in retirement benefits if they volunteer for 15 years and a $3,500 tax break each year. "It's a nice little thank you from the state," she said of the benefits. Crisman said the tight-knit community keeps firefighters coming back for years, even after they have a professional career. "We have a lot of officers who are paid firemen somewhere else but they still volunteer," she said. "It's just in their blood to help out. It's like a family."

Ninety-one New Citizens Sworn in at Legion Event

by Vicki Kriz

Although it was not yet the Fourth of July, Friday, April 18 was a patriotic day for 91 people from 42 different countries who were sworn in as new citizens of the United States at Greenbelt's MG (Brevet) John R. Kenly Armory, home to the Maryland National Guard.

The naturalization ceremony was the fourth sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Department of Maryland, an organization of more than 900,000 members worldwide, said Mary Joiner, Americanism chairman for the group. Affiliated with the American Legion, the Auxiliary's members are relatives of military veterans and current servicemen.

The ceremony was the first for American Legion Auxiliary National President Jan Pulvermacher-Ryan, who came from Madison, Wisc., for the event.

"This is just an outstanding event for us all to witness," she said in her welcoming remarks to the new citizens. "God speed, God bless you and good luck as you continue your life here in the United States."

The ceremony's guest speaker was Eva Browning, former Auxiliary Department of Maryland president, the first immigrant to hold that position. Browning became a U.S. citizen in 1964 after emigrating from Germany in 1958. "I know exactly how you are feeling today because I, too, am an immigrant who became a citizen of this wonderful country," Browning told the new citizens. "I do know how proud you are today and I want to tell you that you will still remember this day many years from now."

EditorialOpen the Door

We are puzzled by the secrecy with which the Greenbelt City Council has treated a letter from the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) asking the city to change its election procedures in order to provide for greater minority representation on the council. This issue concerns all in the city and needs to be discussed and resolved openly in a manner reflecting the wishes of Greenbelt citizens.

City council's standing rules provide that letters to council seeking council action be placed on the agenda of the next regular council meeting under the heading Petitions and Requests. Normally, after reading a letter and hearing from the petitioner, if present, council makes some preliminary disposition of the matter, often referring it to staff for investigation and recommendation or scheduling it for consideration at a future council worksession.

In the case of the ACLU letter, which was faxed and mailed to the city on February 28, the city did not make receipt of the letter public until the very end of March. Council held an unannounced closed door meeting with staff and the attorney on March 12. On April 8 City Attorney Robert Manzi and City Manager Michael McLaughlin met privately with representatives of the ACLU and the NAACP. It is our understanding that council will meet again on April 28 behind closed doors in executive session to receive a report from the city attorney. Sometime thereafter council is expected to discuss the matter openly.

We see no reason why this letter could not have been publicly presented to council at its March 10 meeting, at which time council could have referred the matter to the city attorney for determination as to whether the current city election process is in violation of the Federal Voting Rights Act and, if so, within what parameters the city might change its procedures in order to comply. Having such advice, council could then establish a public process for determining if, and to what extent, changes in election procedures should be made.

Changing our election procedures is a subject, we expect, that will generate much discussion and differences of opinion. Let the door be open and discussion begin.

Letters to the EditorGoodbye
Ms. Gallagher!

We want to express our gratitude to Kathleen Gallagher and wish her well in her new life post-Greenbelt-City-Clerk. Ms. Gallagher set the standard for a city clerk. She was efficient, provided service beyond expectations, had a wonderful sense of humor, appropriately balanced the interests of citizens and city officials and treated everyone with respect. Above all, she was sincerely humble. We will miss her dearly and wish her the very best – she deserves it!

Musings about GHI

A few weeks ago an article appeared in the Gazette concerning additions in GHI. The statement was made "the children couldn't have fun" before the two-story addition was added. I've lived in GHI 30+ years and I've visited many frame, block and brick homes where children were happily playing without the benefit of an addition. GHI has produced many families in the 70+ years of existence without additions. But now the belief is there must be additions for families – many newly elected board members stated they "are for additions." Is there going to be an addition for every unit? Six additions on a row of six units? An addition cuts out your neighbor's light, air and view. Take a look at the towering monstrosities in 73 and 71 Court of Ridge. I have one next to me and I regret ever having given permission for I am now exposed (and my neighbors in the court) to increased noise, traffic and behavior which I am now forced to witness and endure.

Correction

In the page 8 article "Indian Creek Cleanup Offers Challenge to Crew" by Brian St. George last week we failed to give credit to both of the organizations that have adopted the section of Sunnyside Avenue between Edmonston Road and the railroad tracks. The groups that jointly adopted the section are Citizens to Conserve and Restore Indian Creek (CCRIC) and Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group (BCWWG). The News Review regrets the error.

On to First Friday parties – I have endured two of them. The second one was advertised by a flyer as a "community gathering," BYOB and mixes for drinks. The hours were scheduled from 8:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. This event has supposedly been held in GHI for the past 10 years, 12 times a year! I cannot believe this can occur here. The hours are bar/tavern hours and are for the sole purpose of becoming inebriated, not community schmoozing.

The last one held next to me resulted in raucous, hilarious, frenzied activity. At 2:40 a.m. I turned on my garden side porch light, went out and sat in a lawn chair and quietly observed the scene. I saw staggering inebriated persons inching their way toward the back door of the party unit holding onto the fence to steady themselves. They then left noisily through the parking lot waking other members of the court. The party then continued inside, keeping me awake till almost 4 a.m. I took the flyer to Sgt. Potts of the Greenbelt Police, who then faxed a copy to Celia Craze. Potts stated that noise after 11 p.m. is a violation. Leaving the scene and perhaps driving drunk is another violation. There will be no more First Fridays held next to me and if there is the police will be called at 11 p.m. (my neighbors and I will call).

Obituaries

Robert L. Scott, Jr.

Robert L. Scott, Jr., known as "Scott" or "Bob" but to his three sisters always "Robert," died April 9, 2008, in San Antonio, Texas.

He was born June 4, 1930, in Washington, D.C., the son of Greenbelt pioneers "Red" and Mary Scott. He grew up in Greenbelt and was president of his 1947 graduating class at Greenbelt High School where he was co-captain of the basketball team that won the state championship that year. He also earned the nickname "Iron Man" while pitching for Greenbelt High's baseball team, American Legion teams and one year on the University of Maryland team.

In 1949 he married his high-school sweetheart, Jacqueline Hause, and the young couple set up housekeeping in an apartment in Greenbelt.

He joined the Maryland National Guard and entered the Army in 1951, taking basic training at Fort Bragg, N.C. He completed Officers Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla. and was commissioned a lieutenant in the Army Artillery in April 1952, a few weeks after his first son was born. His wife Jackie was still living in Greenbelt.

During his military career, Mr. Scott served with distinction in Korea, Germany, many U.S. postings and Vietnam. He earned the Air Medal, the Joint Service Commendation Medal and the Army Commendation Medal. He retired as a Lt. Colonel in the early 1970s, settling with his wife and three sons in Tempe, Ariz. He then began a new career in labor relations, rising to the position of president of the Arizona Employers Council in Phoenix.

In May 2006, the couple moved to Air Force Village One in San Antonio.

Mr. Scott is survived by his wife Jackie, sons Bob and wife LeAnn of Fort Worth, Texas, Ted and wife Joan of San Diego, Calif., and Kyle and wife Nena of Vienna, Austria; six grandchildren; his sisters Kathleen McFarland and Rosemary Scott of Greenbelt and Joanne Kennedy of Toano, Va.

On April 14 a memorial service focusing on Mr. Scott's integrity and love of family and flag was held in the chapel at Air Force Village, followed later the same day by a ceremony with full military honors at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio.

Who are the Bahá'ís? (Part 2)

Bahá'ís come from all religious backgrounds, including Buddhist, Christian, Hindu, Jain, Jew, Muslim, Sikh, Zoroastrian, animist and non-religious.

Yet they study a common set of sacred writings, observe a unifying code of religious laws, and look to a single international administrative system for continuing guidance.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."

— The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

usually requiring inspection services for code enforcement and licenses.

The comparison suggested that increasing the Greenbelt rates might be looked at as part of the overall budget this year and possibly tied to the funding of additional inspectors in the Community Development portion of the budget.

The main focus for the work-session was to go through the 35-slide presentation outlining the Department's organization, functions, accomplishments, objectives and issues for both FY08 and FY09.

McLaughlin praised Craze and her department for linking the departmental presentation to the city's stated goals and management objectives as approved each year in the budget document. He noted that the Planning and Community Development approach for presenting budget information should be used as a model for other city departments. Each of the department's functions was outlined.

Planning

Responsible for overseeing all physical development within the city, the Planning Office tasks include: reviewing development projects; planning and coordinating city capital projects; compiling and interpreting demographic data; drafting legislation; coordinating with other public agencies on Greenbelt development activities; building permit review; variance and departure from zoning standards review; and staff support to the city Advisory Planning Board, the Forest Preserve Task Force and the Board of Appeals and the planning and coordinating of city environmental enhancement projects.

The Community Development office is responsible for city programs relating to maintaining the health, safety and general welfare of the city through enforcement of housing, building and construction codes. Activities include residential and commercial inspections, inspections of construction in the city rights-of-way, noise ordinance enforcement, handling of property code violation complaints, sediment and erosion control enforcement, handbill enforcement, false (burglar) alarm enforcement, liquor license issues and parking enforcement.

Animal Control

The animal control function, which is managed by the Community Development office, is part of the Public Safety budget. The Animal Control Office provides regular patrol and on-call services to enforce the city's animal regulations.

Services include finding homes for animals needing adoption, investigation of cruelty and neglect complaints, the handling of bite reports and collection of dead animals. The office also provides education, outreach and advocacy for animal control issues, enforces the city dog park regulations and sponsors annual community programs such as the Pet Expo and the Pooch Plunge.

Challenges

This year council focused on challenges to the department with the complaints and violations in the Springhill Lake (SHL) community and the department's inability to keep up with needed inspections of the complex. Sterling told council the department wants to be more active in SHL but they now need a full-time inspector for SHL in order to keep up with ongoing annual inspections, resident complaints and follow-up on enforcement actions.

He told council it is getting more and more difficult to get adequate responses from SHL management on a backlog of violations. It appears that AIMCO owners are more interested in complaining about Greenbelt's inspection staff than in addressing code and other issues requiring management attention.

Following discussion lasting about 15 minutes on problems being faced at the SHL apartments, Craze offered to prepare a report to council addressing various strategies for the city to address issues of non-compliance at the project.

Another brief discussion dealt with the ongoing construction of the overpass bridge connecting the South Core development of Greenbelt Station and the north-south connector to Greenbelt Road.

An issue for the city is that other than a short stretch of the approach to the bridge from the north, most of the structure lies outside the Greenbelt city limits. Apparently neither Berwyn Heights, where a good part of the structure resides, or the county are interested in taking responsibility for the on-going maintenance of the overpass, once it is constructed. Council was advised by the city staff that they are working to resolve the issues and are interested in developing with the county a memorandum of understanding outlining the responsibilities of the respective agencies and that Greenbelt would consider a proposal that city equipment would take care only of snow plowing/sanding/salting activities as needed during times of announced snow emergencies.

The city manager determined that such a provision would actually help the city crews that must take care of emergency snow removal for the city rights of way Greenbelt is responsible for when the connector road is in operation.

Solar Power

Other items warranting brief updates by the staff included the possibility of utilizing solar power for the observatory at the Northway Fields area; staff search for funding of the Hillside/Greenhill Stream Stabilization project now in its final design stage and working with the county to share costs in addressing the storm water problems at the red brick apartments near the low point of the underpass behind the Sunoco station in the Center.

Other concerns were working out inspection issues and responsibilities between the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the county and the city regarding storm water management associated with Greenbelt Station development activities; and continued staff concerns with proposed plans for Beltway Plaza redevelopment. The city also foresees partnering with the Maryland Department of the Environment on a range of issues associated with the Greenbelt Station (North and South core) developments.

Toward the end of the presentation, discussion moved to several challenges faced by the department. One was that revenue from parking violations was down from that of previous years because of staff vacancies.

Another identified challenge, if the objective was to address unlawful car sales from residential neighborhoods, was that additional zoning enforcement staffing would be required. Concerning zoning enforcement, approximately $30,000 in invoices for violations (fines) are being delayed.

If a new staff member is to be brought on board to coordinate the capital projects, no office space is available to accommodate that person.

The department is also undertaking to convert its plans and records to an electronic format and in the longer term evaluating a database management software program to manage the code enforcement case files. That project would follow an analysis in 2009 and be put in operation in 2010.

It was a worksession covering the activities and concerns of a very busy and important city department in just over two hours.

In order to be eligible for American citizenship, immigrants must enter the U.S. on a green card and live in the country for five years. If the candidate is married to a U.S. citizen, he or she need only live in the country for three years before gaining citizenship. Some schooling in U.S. history and reading and writing in English are also required. The entire process costs about $600, Joiner said.

After the new citizens took the Oath of Allegiance, officers from the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services in Baltimore called the name of each person to receive the certificate of citizenship. The Armory's gymnasium was filled with smiles, applause and calls of congratulations as the new citizens received their certificates.

Current American Legion Auxiliary Department of Maryland President Catherine "Cass" Wheeler spoke to several new citizens present who said they were most excited to gain the right to vote in the U.S. "They are excited about being able to vote for what they think is right," Wheeler said. "This really increases our awareness of not taking our citizenship for granted," Pulvermacher-Ryan said.

Ninety-one new citizens took the Oath of Allegiance to receive their new U.S. citizenship on April 18 in Greenbelt.

In Memoriam Green Ridge Holds Cassels Memorial

On Thursday, April 17, Green Ridge House held a celebration of the life of Jim Cassels hosted by his companion of 26 years, Louise Swiderski. Arranging the event were the Green Ridge House board and social committee assisted by President Hazel Parent, Social Director Theresa Slone and Treasurer Elaine Pearson.

The Cassels "Celebration of Life" was attended by the staff and half of the Green Ridge House residents. Food and fellowship were enjoyed by all and a lot of fond memories of Jim Cassels were shared.

Some special memories were mentioned. Jim would come down every Wednesday night after Louise had finished calling bingo to help her close up and walk her home; this went on for all the 22 years she called bingo. Another resident mentioned Jim was a very good line dancer — Jim and Louise taught line dancing every Thursday night. Also mentioned was that Jim was a very patient listener — whether you were telling a knock-knock joke or a story about your pet, he would listen as if you were reciting "The Gettysburg Address."

Jim Cassels was a man who "walked softly and carried a big stick."

— Hazel Parent,

Space in Song and Maypole At May Artful Afternoon

The next Artful Afternoon program will be held on Sunday, May 4 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center with "The Chromatics" singing a capella about space and science, an all-call Maypole dance, a mask-making workshop, a free ticket drawing and more.

The Chromatics

Local favorite vocal ensemble The Chromatics will perform at 3:30 p.m. "Spreading science through a cappella — and a capella through science — across a wide swath of the known universe" is the group's raison d'être. These singing scientists educate and entertain audiences of all ages at science museums, coffeehouses and arts festivals far and wide. Their CD "AstroCapella" has even flown in space.

Music Director and Greenbelt resident Padi Boyd keeps The Chromatics on the same page. There's not much Boyd can't relate about Chardonnay, the X-Files or planets around other stars; she has her colleagues' vote for the best hair in professional astrophysics. Apparently their day jobs aren't enough to keep them busy: Boyd is joined by architect Barry Mahaffey, satellite power-system designer John Meyer, database designer Deb Nixon, astrophysicist Alan Smale and astronomer and web "goddess" Karen Smale.

Maypole

Before the concert take hold of a ribbon and join neighbors in a daring, joyful Maypole revel at 3 p.m. With untrained dancers and long, colorful ribbons, just imagine where this will lead. The less coordination, the more hilarious the results. All ages are encouraged to participate.

Mask Making

To look natural at the dance join Artist-in-residence Loraine DiPietro from 1 to 3 p.m. to make a nature-themed mask. This activity is offered in partnership with the Greenbelt Green Man Festival on May 10 and 11, where attendees will get another chance to unleash their inner Green Man or wood sprite. Now in its fourth year, the Green Man Festival is a celebration of Greenbelt's commitment to preserve its

Menu for Senior Nutrition Program

The Senior Nutrition "Food and Friendship" program provides lunches for seniors Monday through Friday at the Community Center.
